Hi Marissa,

As a 30 year resident of Lyons here is my input:

First of all a decision made under threat by Cemex is a poor place to be. I had always expected them to do what we had been informed of which was shutdown and reclaim the land. This would be my preference but apparently that's not on the table. So the choice given in the Redstone are 15 years of more pollution, trucks who already don't respect the drivers and bikers, more dangerous traffic and congestion or the same thing indefinitely? Not much of a choice. How can we even trust that they will shutdown after 15 years?! Is there a back entrance that keeps them off the main roads at least? Still not much of an option and probably bad for other locals. How is it we even got here and how is Boulder County representing out interests? Are there any financial offsets we could ask for so at least we get something? Could we limit the hours that the trucks could operate? 10am-3pm, no weekends? If we can't beat them can we at least negotiate for concessions and who's doing that and cares about Lyons?

Thanks,
Joe
